Is a global network of youth peer educators and a social movement of youth reaching out to their peers using alternative methods of education. It was launched in 2011 under the umbrella of the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA). This continually expanding network includes young people working in the broad areas of adolescent sexual and reproductive health and STIs in around 60 countries in Central and Eastern Europe, Central Asia, the Middle East, and both North and East Africa.

Our Vision

Create a generation that is educated and aware of its rights and responsibilities.

We Are Here

To all peers around the world
